GRIFFIN'S FOUR FIRSTS.

HIS POLLOWERS FULL OF JOY AND RUM.

STARTLING SUCCESS OF A GUTTENBURG JOCKEY FAT ELIZABETIC

The racing at Elizabeth yesterday was enjoyed by the largest crowd of the week, the weather being the chief attraction, for the card was not esing the chief attraction, for the card was not esing the chief attraction, for the day was the pecially generous. A feature of the day was the success of Griffin, the Jockey, four of the six winners coming home under his pilotage. His followers adhered to him through all four races, and profited labely a every mount of his was at a fair price. adhered to him through all four races, and profiled richly, as every mount of his was at a fair price. Florence, who was first choice of the eight that ran in the first race, won in fine style. Mr. Rowe gave so bad a start that few of the spectators ught it a send-off until the field had run half arlong. Longbrook was first away and led for furlongs. Florence then joined him and for the of the way it was an exciting struggle been them. At the end Florence was first by a head. Oporto was third, five lengths away. Red Banner was at 3 to 5 in the early betting on ond race, but at post time the bookmakers gered 9 to 5, Restraint having supplanted her as porite. Both were beaten. Marshall was first a length, Red Banner second, a length before

The Ironmaster captured the third race. His recent races did not warrant his being supported to finish in the first three, yet he was backed down to finish in the first three, yet he was backed down from 6 to 1 to 11 to 5. He was last during the first part of the race, but came to the front with great speed when his rider was ready, and won first place by a neck from Hasty, who beat Chief Justice two lengths for the place. Stockton, the favorite, was bedly handled and came in fourth.

Armitage was a 2 to 5 favorite for the fourth race. Sims had to ride him to keep his place for the first half mile, but at the close he had things all his own way, winning well in hand by a length and a half, Aurelian second, two lengths before Rama.

twice on Mascot.

As soon as the horses showed on the track it was generally remarked that Mascot was not looking in perfection—he lacked the shining coat he wore a day or tw trim—he lacked the shining coat he wore a day or two since; and as the race west on it was seen that the pacer was certainly a trifle of, has coat was dry and had a haid, staring appearance, and in every heat he was more or less unsteady. Directum, the champton race trotter, beat the champion pacer too easily; but on the smazing form which the black four-year-old showed. Mascot in tip-top form could not have altered the result. It is an axiom of the harness racing world that the average speed of the pacer is from two to three seconds superfor to that of the frotter; yesterday Directum supplied the exception to this rule, and proved conclusively that there is no light harbess racer to-day that can live with him in a race of heats.

London, Nov. 2-A dispatch from Cape Town says that native conners who are reaching Fort Vic-toria confirm the belief that King Lobengula has peer trapped. He is blocked to the northward by the Tsetse Fly country, through which it will be impossible for him to drive his cattle, and to the southward by the Imperial troops and the forces of the British South Africa Company. Lo-bengula's forces are supposed to be in the region of the Shangani and Gaulo rivers, 140 miles west of Fort Charter. Their capture seems probable A dispatch received to-day in this city says that part of Lobengula's forces were overtaken by Major Forbes's column last night near Buluwayo. The Matabele turned on their pursuers, but were de-feated with serious loss, and many of them were while a small detachment of the company's men were guarding a number of Matabele prisoners on the night of October 23 they were attacked by a body of 5,000 Matabele, and a sharp fight ensued. The British were fully prepared to receive the enemy. In the first rush made by the Matabele they swept past the British pickets. This brought them within range of the British cuns and a deadly fire was poured into their ranks. For a moment the natives held their ground; then they broke, and fled to cover in the bush, pursued by the British cavalry, in this fight 500 of the Matabele were killed or wounded. bush, pursued by the British cavalry. In this fight 500 of the Matabele were killed or wounded. The company's forces lost two killed—a white and a negro—and six wounded.

A dispatch to "The Daily News" from Fort Victoria says; "On the third attack the enemy did not slop to use their spears, but broke and fled at the first taste of the Maxims. The troops went for the Matabele with loud cheers and shouting. There was much first chacking, thrusting and shooting with revolvers at close quarters, the Matabele ruck, but for the broken ground, would have been exterminated. It is estimated that 1,00 were killed and wounded." I cape Town. Nov. 2—Advices from Fort Salisbury, under the date of October 23 describe daily kirmishes since October 23 between the Matabele company's troops went into laager every night, and awaited anxiously the attacks of the hostile imples On the night before the decisive battle of October 23 their scouts warned them of the approaching Matabele onslaught. The troops were fully laagered when the imples came. Just before daylisht shots from the outposts gave warning that the attack was near. Within a few minutes the senticles and native scouts had hurried into the laager. It was still dark, and no enemy could be seen. Only the whizzing of assegais gave constant notice that the warriors were drawing near. The company's men began firing, according to command, in the directions from which the spears came thickest. As day broke, great masses of black figures could be seen advancing upon the laager. The Maxim guns fired with great rapidity on the advancing regiments, which seemed to fade away before them.

The third attack was made by the Matabele after it had become light enough for the accurate use of rifles. The combined tires of the Maxims and rifles met the Matabele in the first rush of the attack, and they fell by hundreds. As the remnants of their regiments turned and fled, the company's men left camp and charged. The demorralization of the Matabele was complete them.

MR. BAYARI RESPONDS TO A TOAST. THE AMBASSADOR'S PLEASANT SPEECH AT THE SHEFFIELD CUTLERS' DINNER.

London, Nov. 2.—The annual dinner of the Shef-field Cutlers was held this evening. Among the conspicuous guests were Thomas F. Bayard, United States Ambassador; Lord Roberts, formerly com nander of the British forces in India; Earl Spener, First Lord of the Admiralty, and the Duk-Norfolk. In responding to a toast to his health, Mr. Bayard spoke substantially as follows:

"You all have heard that trade follows the flag. I believe that man's heart follows the flag, whether t be the Stars and Stripes, so dear to me, or the Union Jack, so dear to you. Nor does man's heart hesitate and ask: 'Under what conditions?' but it will sail under and follow the flag without question. When an American like myself comes to England, he antedates the history of his own intry's government and comes back to share with Englishmen the traditions common to their with Englishmen the traditions common to their tongue and people, to share with them the klories of the tongue of Shakespeare and of the morals and faith of Milton."

Mr. Bayard, continuing, said that he considered the occasion a fitting one for reference to his father's visit to England as peacemaker between England and the United States. In speaking at some length of the War of 1812, he said: "I have heard that war described as the late war; then as the War of 1812, Lately it has had a more gracious title, and has been cailed the Last War. Now, I can disclose in this connection my own diplomatic mission. It is that the War of 1812 shall remain our last war. May it always be our last war."

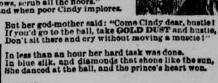

Mr. Bayard spoke of the antiquity and vitality of the Cutlers' Company and paid a handsome tribute to the business rectitude of the members. "I have no grudging eye for the prosperity of your country," he added. "I believe the only doctrine for a man or for a Nation is to do a friend the utmost benefit and an opponent no more harm than is necessary. I cannot believe in the advancement of any country founded on the mistertune or injury of another. The English and the Americans are strong enough to adopt these principles of good-will for their practice."

In closing, Mr. Bayard asked all to join him in the hope that the English and American flags would always float in amily. He was cheered joudly as he took his seat. Mr. Bayard is the guest of the Duke of Norfolk.

ENTERTAINING THE RUSSIANS AT AJACCIO. Ajaccio, Nov. 2.-The whole city has given itself Ajaccio. Nov. 2.—The whole city has given itself up to entertaining the Russian naval officers. The fleet will remain here until to-morrow. Upon their arrival yesterday the Russians were addressed by M. Ceccaidi, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, who, in the course of his speech, declared that Corsica was France's advance sentinel. He hoped the Russians would often visit Ajaccio. Admiral Avelan made a brief reply. He suid that his attention had been drawn to Ajaccio before he left Russia. He expressed his gratification at the proposal that had been made to erect a Russian church in the city, and said that Russia would consider the matter. He promised that before spring the Russian fleet would return to Ajaccio and make a long stay.

It has been learned that the accident that occurred yesterday on the Russian warship Emperor Nicholas I, while she was entering the harbor here, was due to the explosion of a carboy of turpentine.

THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT REOPENED. MR. FOWLER MOVES THE SECOND READING OF THE PARISH COUNCILS BILL.

London. Nov. 2.—The opening of Parliament today attracted little attention. Few members were present at the time fixed for the opening of the House of Commons, and there was no rush for seats. Speaker Peel took the chair at 2 o'clock and the House at once settled down to business.
Mr. Fowler, president of the Local Government
People moved the second resulting of the Parish Board, moved the second reading of the Parish Councils bill.

In making the motion Mr. Cowler said that the bill dealt with 13,000 rural parishes, of which num-ber 6,000 had populations of less than 200. As no council would be constituted in a parish having a population under 300, such parishes would requ to be grouped. This matter formed one of the difficulties with which the House must grapple An important question was what effect the bill An important question was what effect the bill would have on the Church of England. Certainly the bill transferred from the church wardens the control of purely parish property to secular officers, as it ought to be transferred. This statement was greeted with cheers by the Government supporters.

Walter Long, Progressive Conservative, Member for the West Derby division of Liverpool, said that the powers given to the parish councils for the compulsory purchase of land were too great. The areas which would be allowed a council must be enlarged, as the 300 population limit was too small.

THE AUSTRIAN CABINET CRISIS. Vienna, Nov. 2.-Emperor Francis Joseph will re turn to the city to-morrow and will receive at once Prince Windisch-Graetz and Count Badeni, Governor of Galicia. The later will advise that the Cabinet be reconstructed by Count Taaffe. His proposal is supported by the Clericais and Boheraians, and is said to have some advocates among the Conservatives and Poles. The German Liberals will hear nothing of Taafe's return to power, and therefore the end of the crisis remains in doubt. The Emperor clings to Taafe and may be able to London, Nov. 2-A dispatch to "The Standard" London, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to "The Standard' from Vienna says Prince Alfred Windisch-Graetz, whom Emperor Francis Joseph desired to succeed Count Tauffe as Austrian Prime Minister, has announced that, owing to important family reasons, he is not able to accept the office. The dispatch adds that Count Karl Hoenwart zu Gerlachstein is likely to be summoned by the Emperor to form a Ministry. If he refuses, as it is expected he will, the Emperor will make his own choice and will pay intite regard to the names suggested by the party managers or the press.
